Student centric method's

Student centric methods, such as experiential learning, participative learning and problem solving methodologies are used for enhancing learning experiences. Being a law college, we need to take up different approach than the other colleges/educational institutions for Student centric methods, such as experiential learning, participative learning and problem solving methodologies are used for enhancing learning experiences. This also involves the instructions and directions of the University.

We strive hard to integrate experiential, participatory, and problem solving methodologies by adopting innovative teaching-learning methodologies that bring a thoughtful learning experience for the students. Traditional system is very much in place that engaged students in the lecture, apart from this our college follows experiential learning, participatory learning and issue resolving methodologies for enhancing students learning experience.

Different participatory and experimental learning activities includes projects assignments, class tests, presentations, group discussions, case studies, debates, client counselling, mock trial, moot court and other practical related activities. We do invite expertise lectures on the topics not covered in the syllabus but very much required for the profession.

The co – curricular and extra - curricular activities plays an integral part of the students' holistic education through various groups such as Cultural Club, Sports Club, Para Legal Volunteers, Moot Court club, Debate club etc. Students' participation in Intra and Inter Collegiate Competitions, Cultural events, Sports at different level enrich their professional ethics and social responsibilities. Student centric methods University curriculum prescribes in accordance with BCI stipulation court visits, internships, moot court exercises, drafting exercises in conveyances like sale deed and pleadings like writ petition, complaints etc.
